Excerpt: . . . 9 this multi-modal solution may seem self-evident, but solutions do not always present themselves linking the supported combatant commanders to the distribution national partners without having one entity as the quarterback of the process. The result of these ef-forts is that each geographic commander now has one of these oper-ations centers, and the concept is being codified in doctrine, policy, and training. The DDOC continues to mature, and later this year we will pub-lish the third edition of the template, which will incorporate, sir, performance metrics and guidance for the geographic combatant commanders on how we collectively can execute this mission. Finally, sir, in 2006, Under Secretary of Defense Krieg des-ignated our command as the functional proponent for radio fre-quency identification and related automatic information technology in the Department. Under this designation, we will prepare and execute an implementation strategy and draft the corporate ap-proach for active and passive RFID, satellite tracking, use of bar codes, and other asset visibility technologies. We have recently published the concept of operations for this to improve the overall performance for the warfighter, and our goal is to publish the implementation plan this fall, which will address both asset visibility and your considerations in terms of improving the supply chain. Mr. Chairman and Senator Voinovich, I am grateful for the op-portunity to testify today, and I would be happy to discuss these very important issues that you have tracked for...
